Text links

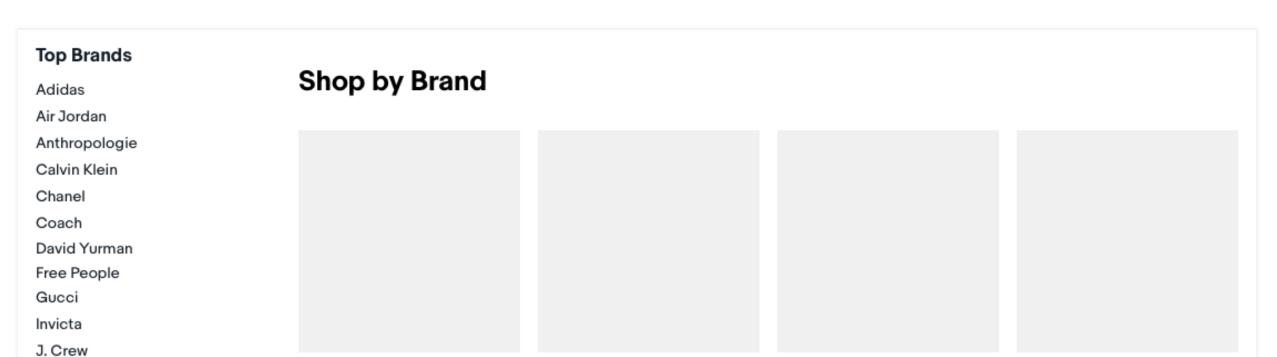

Text links direct users to new pages or allow them to take discreet actions. Links are fundamental in navigating the product. On large screens, links have default, hover, and visited states defined by the system.

Link types

Our system consolidates text links into three distinct sub-types: navigation links, action links, and inline links.

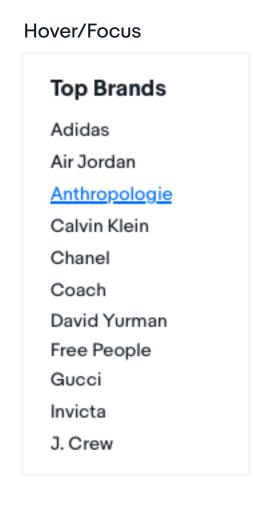

Navigation links

Navigation links are best used when a user can clearly and easily perceive clickability through inherent visual affordances. Examples include the title of an item tile, and the list of links within the left-navigation region of a page. In both cases, users typically understand and assume that the text elements are clickable.

Action links

The blue link color allows for quicker identification of actions on page scan.

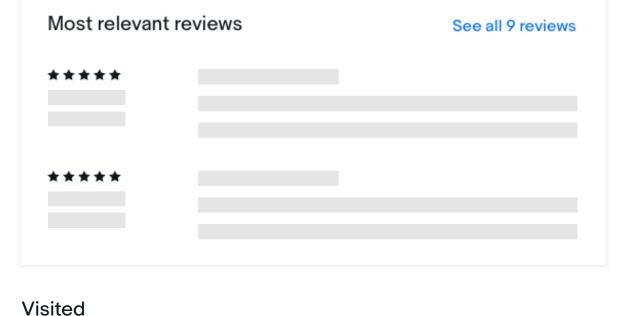

Use action links when users need an added visual affordance for clickability.
