

Pills

Rounded pills are a group of buttons that are listed horizontally from left to right. They are used as either links or filters and their color and combination will reveal their function. Below will highlight their different usages.

Pill types

Navigation

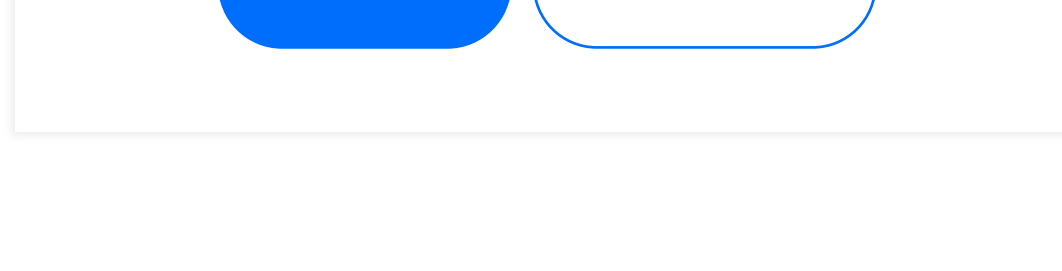

Navigation pills act the same as CTA's and bring users to a different page.

/Controls/Pills/Outline

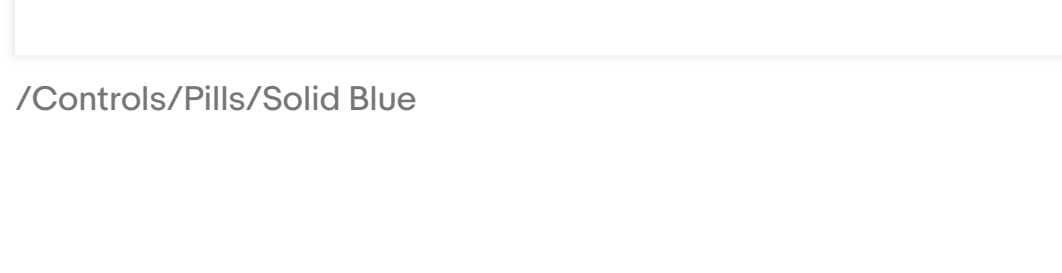

Selected/Unselected

Solid blue treatment is used for the selected state when using pills for filtering. An outlined treatment is used as the unselected state when combined with a selected pill.

Secondary navigation

Pills used for secondary navigation allows for visual hierarchy and adds color to pages without brand elements.

Usage

Links

Sometimes, pills play the role of links. They redirect users to another page. The recommended treatment is the outlined pill. In these examples, the home page pills direct users to different pages and the SRP page pills are used for browse guidance.

Variants

Solid Blue Links

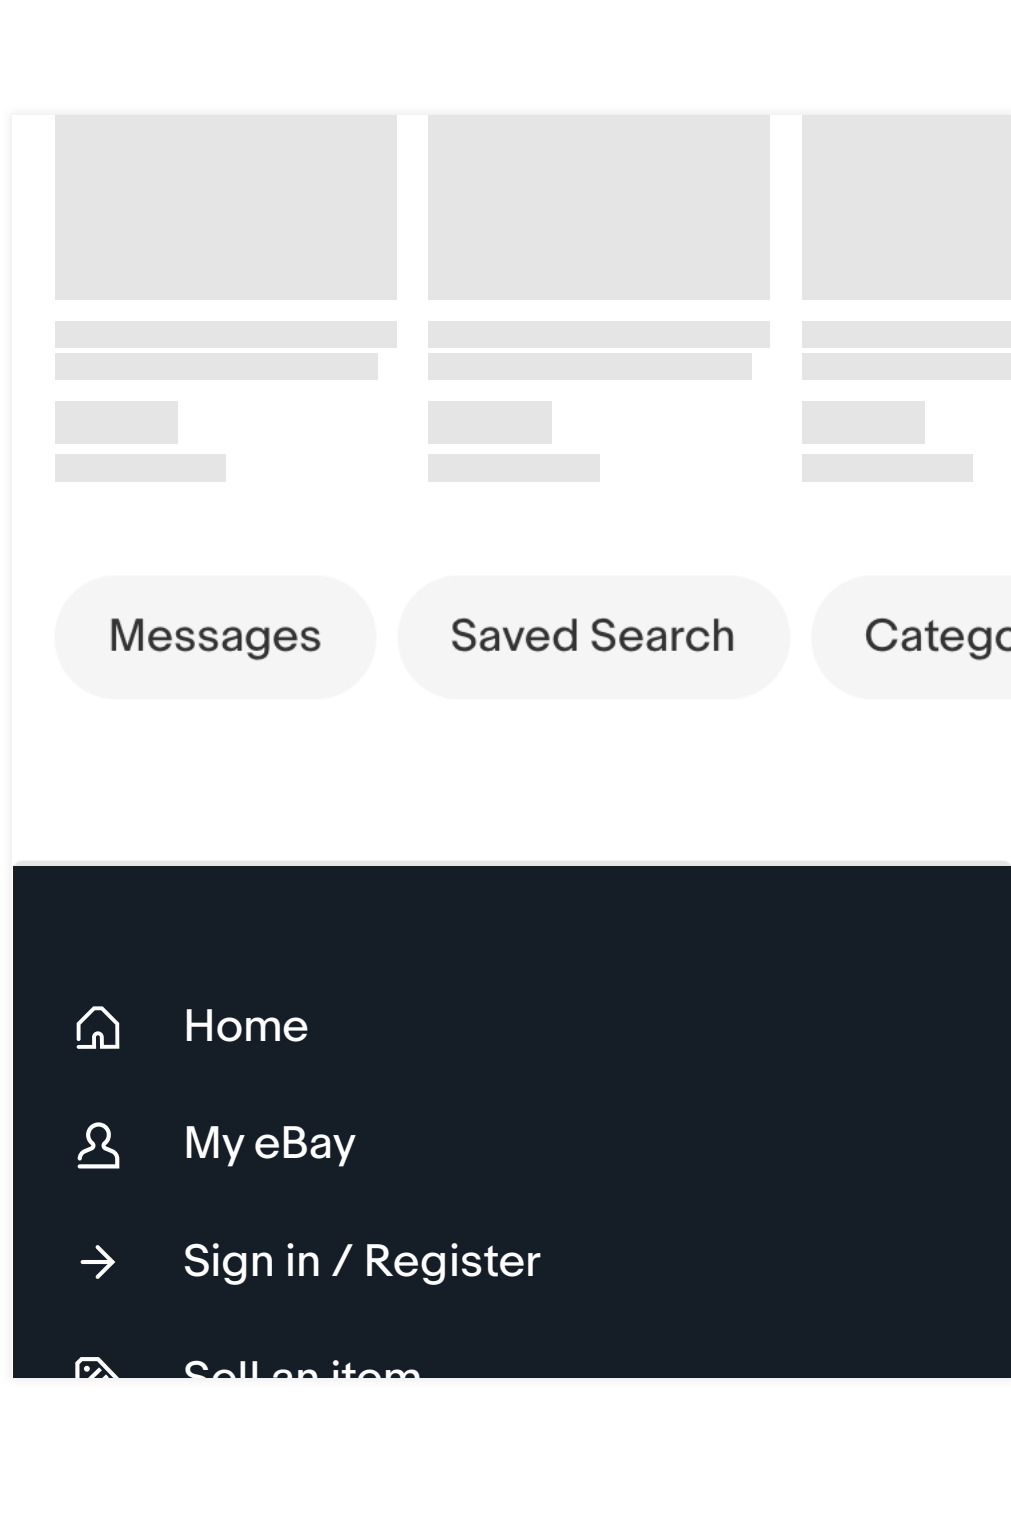

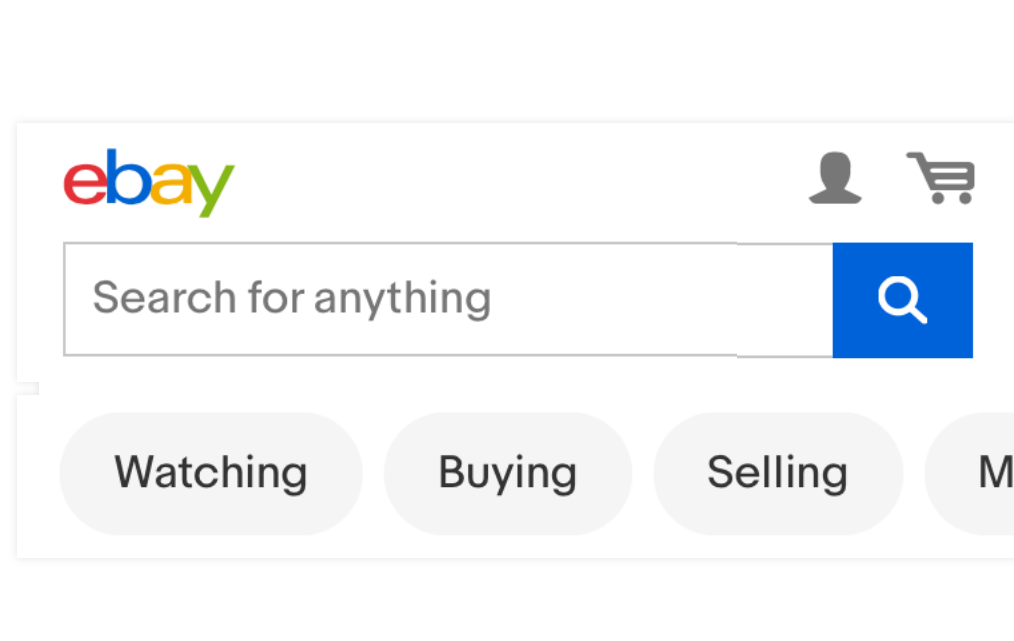

This variant is a secondary treatment, recommended only for promoting features or controls. To be used on pages where there is no existing brand presence.

Android home page link pills are used for quick access to certain top level pages.

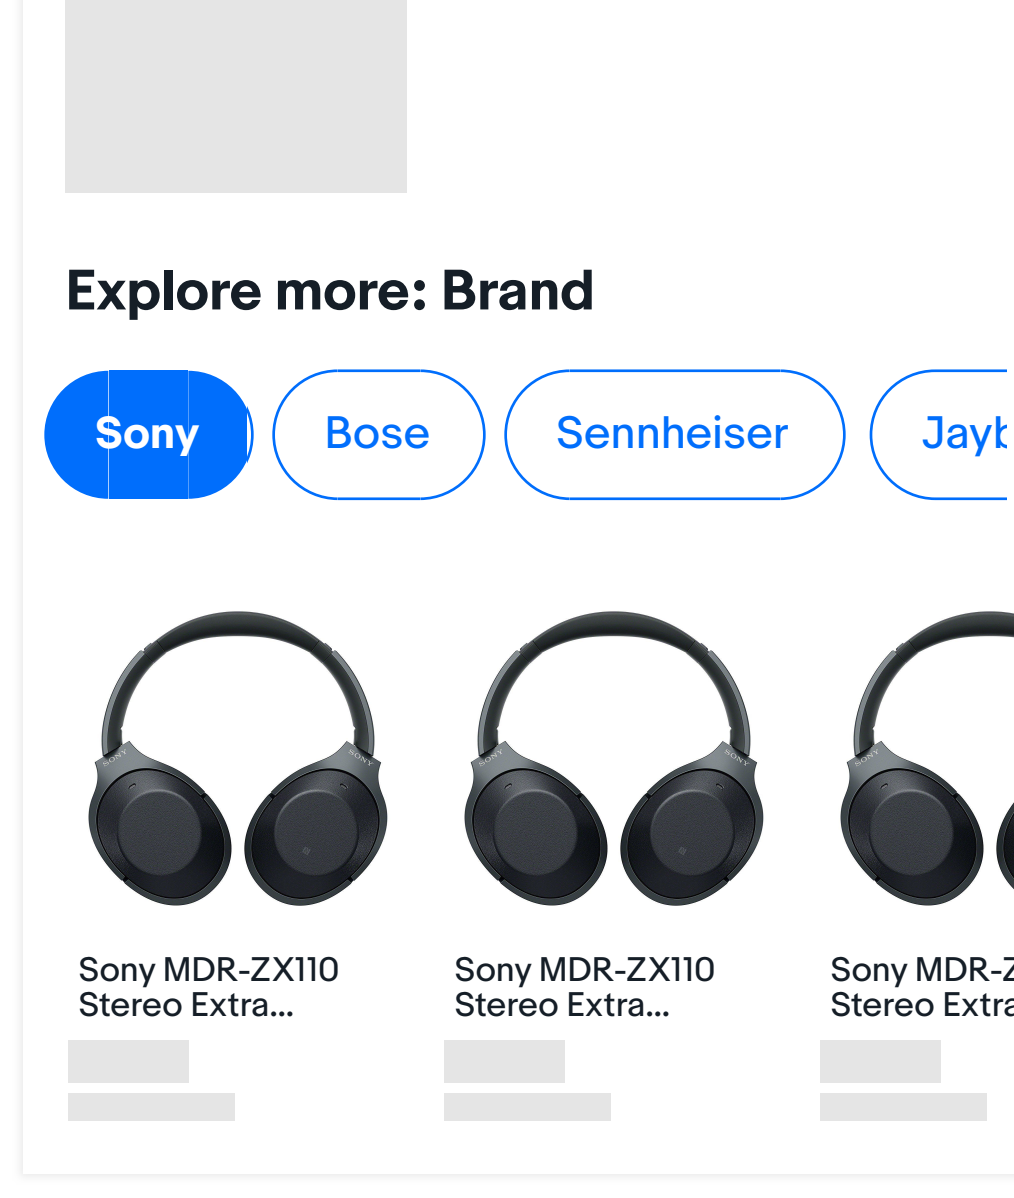

mWeb Home

We do not recommend using grey pills.

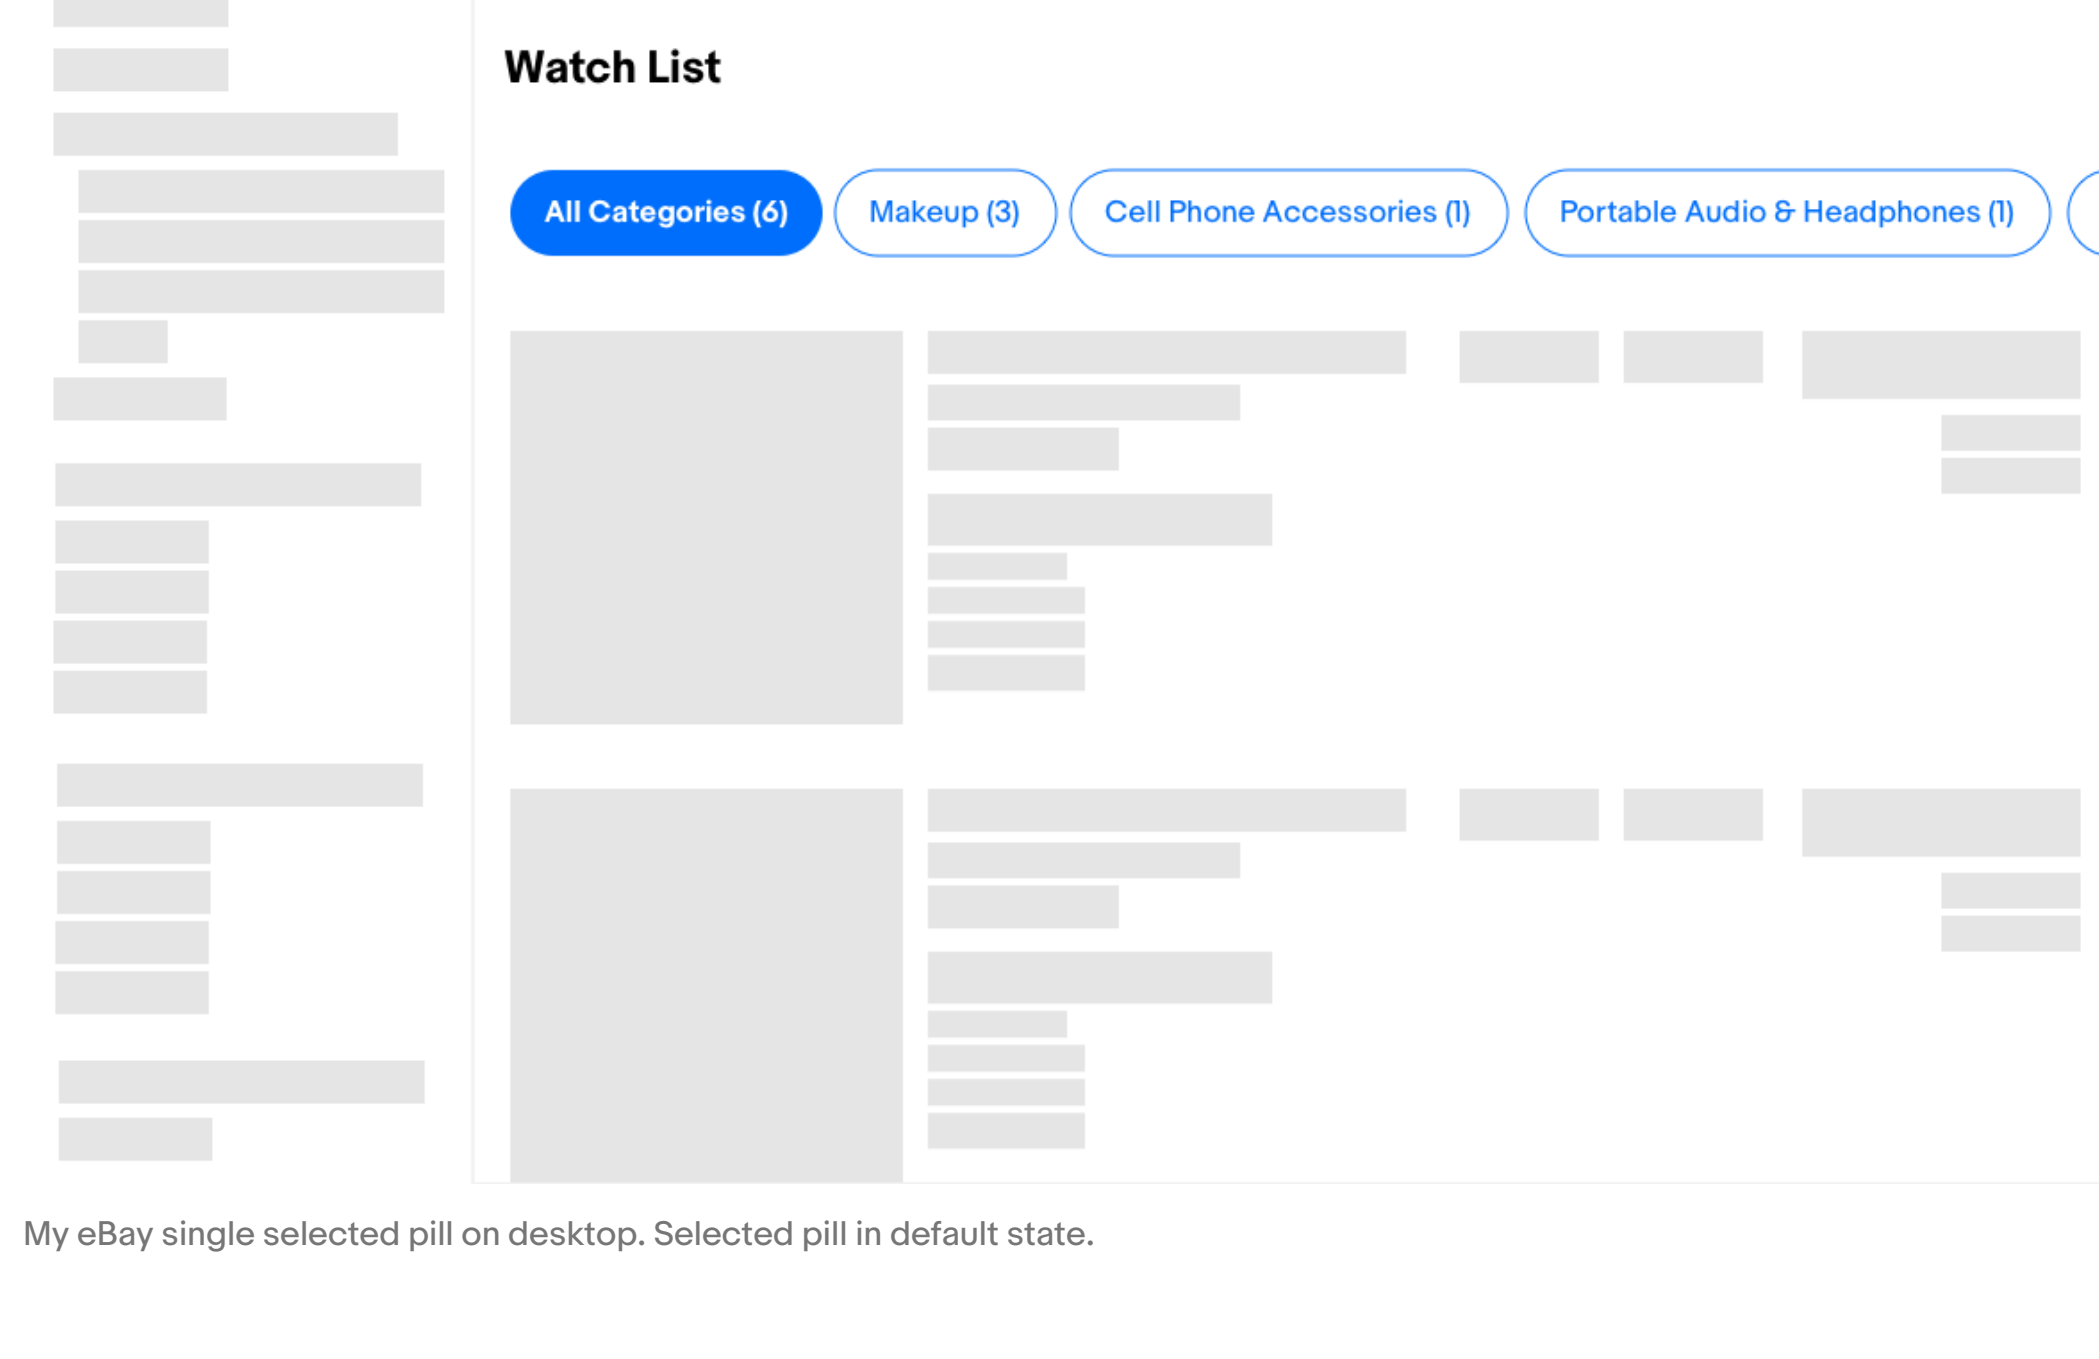

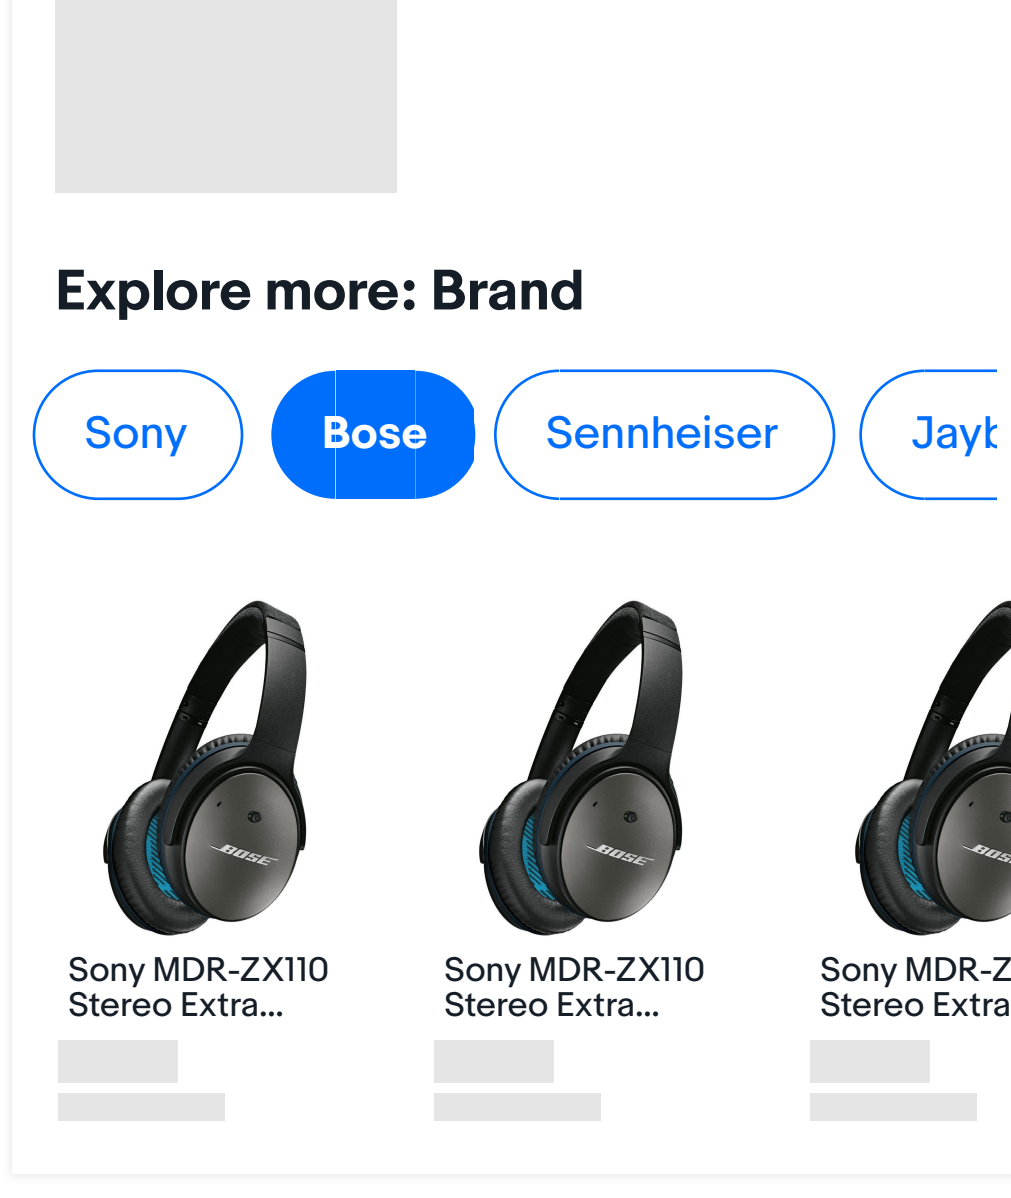

Filtering

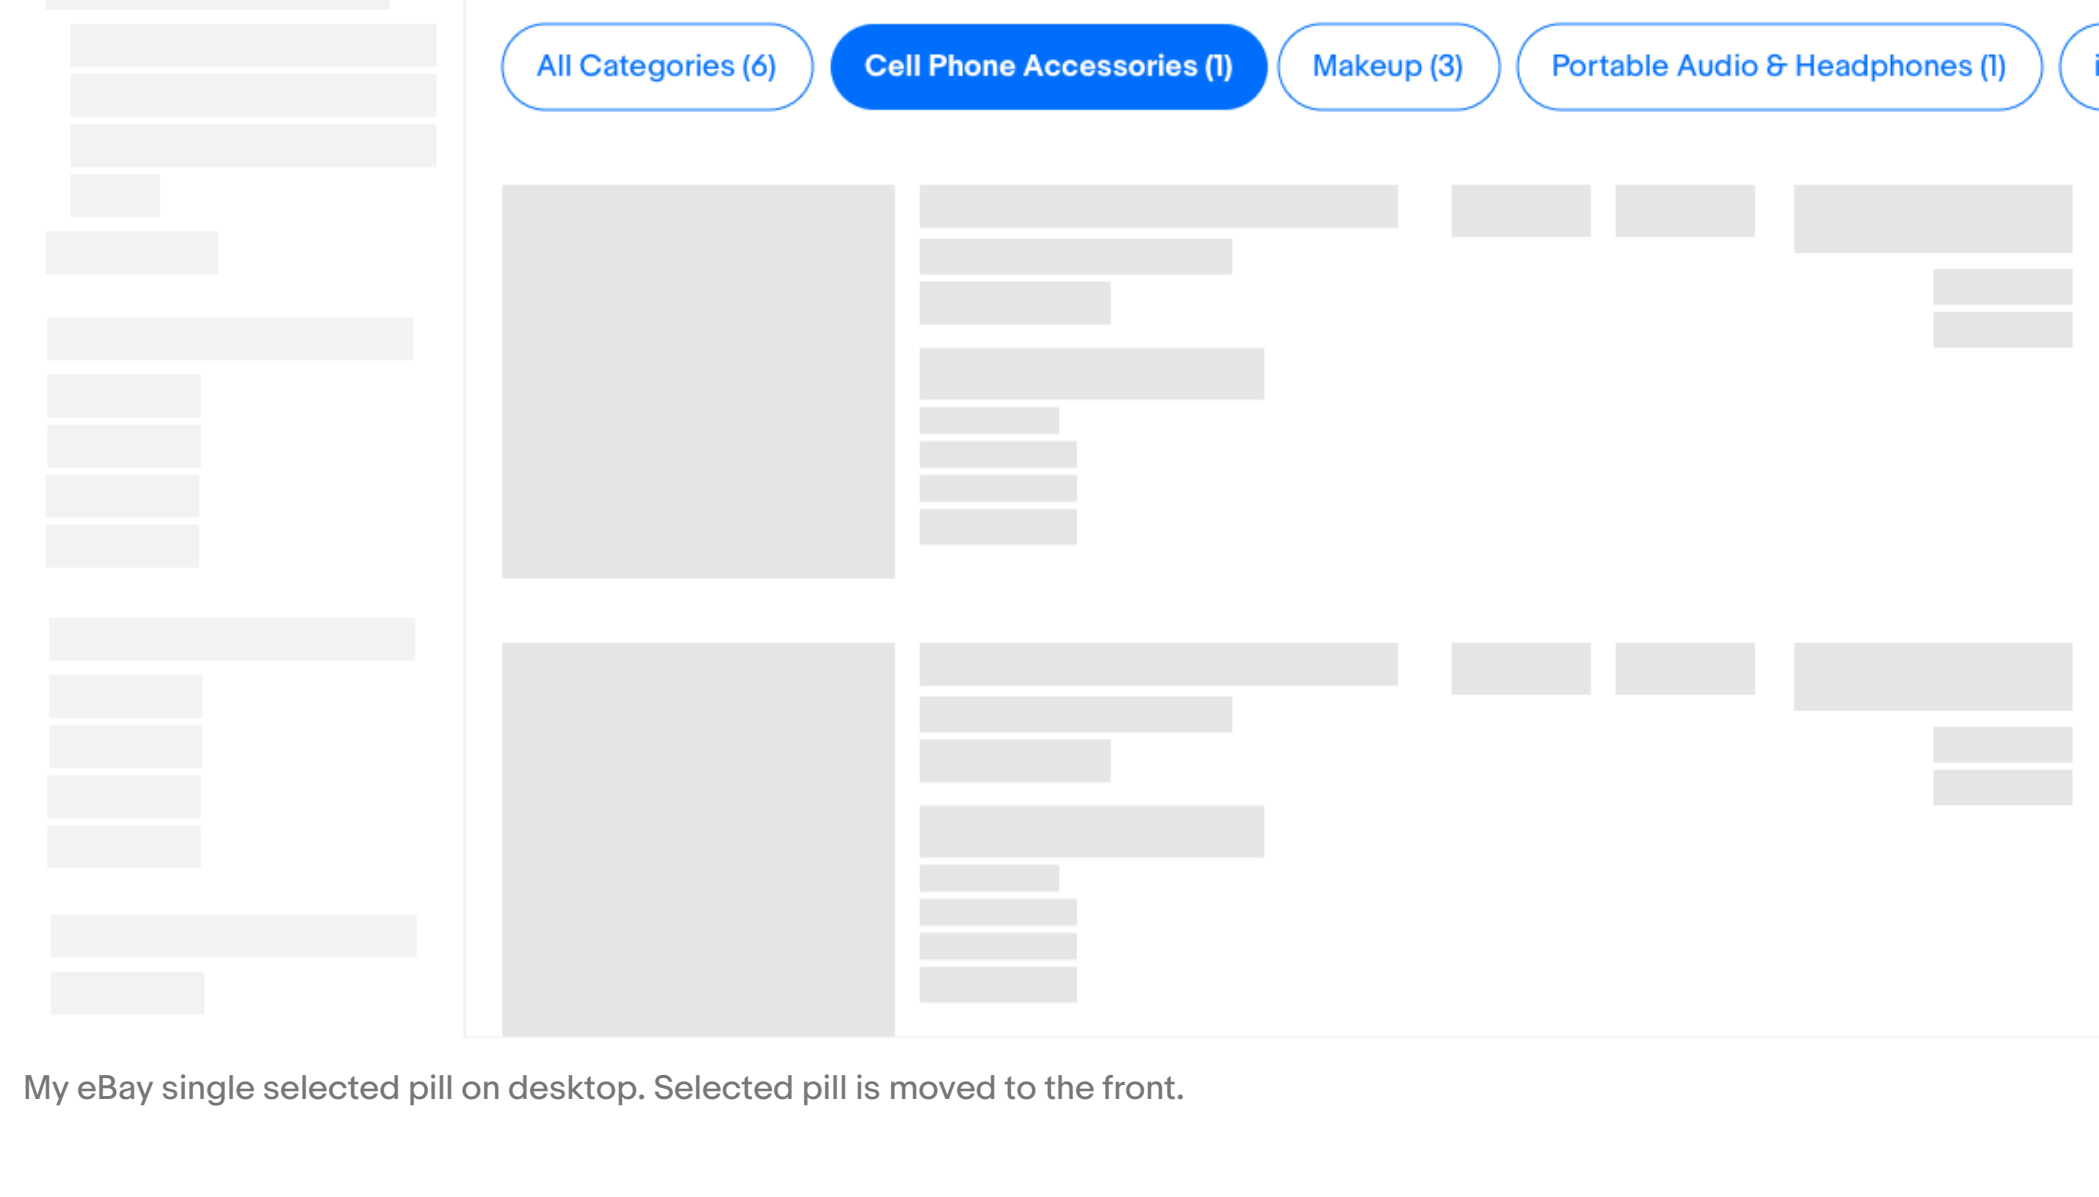

Using pills as filters reduces the content on a page. Only one pill can be selected at a time. The pattern utilizes both the selected pill and the unselected pill. When a pill is selected, the content will be updated on that page but, it will not bring users to a new page.
